The defeat of Killin for the chromanship of the stile central committee wis a com-plete su prise, and the Multnomah delega-tion felt knocked out. Somehow or other tion felt knocked out Somehow or other the idea had seized them that they having settled their own dispute as to the chairman ship Jullin would be elected as a matter of course and i.s. doubtful whether they sought to make your for him during their two days stay here. After the state central commit lee had been announced. Will am of Polk presented kulling norms is chairman and it was sure of edge to would be chosen unany mously hat he wasn't. D'Arcy started the flood had for Bush by a short vigorous speech. He was followed by Gen John I Miller of Lake, who made a most earnest appeal for Bush and victory in June and November. It was Miller's first and only speech in the convention and he talked to the delegates as a father might talk to his son's whom he loved, setting out on a long journey. He asked nothing as a favor to Bush by the appeal in behalf of the democrate party and clumed a right as a worker in the democratic harness for thirty by years, to advice the younger members. It was a remarkably effective speech because its every and and tone had the appearance of sincerity. Meter of Multinomah, appealed to the convention to elect Killin, because to insure effective work, the chairman must be stationed in Portland. As a simple business proposition, as asked for Killin.

Some ruley delegate asked whether it has not beer customary for the state committee to cleet kills was a charman. the idea had seized them that they having

The next morning he apose early and started for the city to give himself up, thinking he had killed the highwayman. But on reaching town, as no one had heard anything of the man, and he was not to be found at the place where he crossed over the fence, he concluded he did not wound him very badly even if he hit him. He says when he fired the first shot the man was not more than ten or fitteen feet distant from him, and thinks he d.d not miss his aim entirely.

These are there enterprises which will result in untold benefits to the people at large. Not second to these are the proposals of the Farmors' Alliance to build a large warchouse at North Yakima in order to accommodate the products of the county which are brought in for shipment, and the understood intention and determination of that organization to offer great inducements for the establishment of a cannery, soap, starch and other factories here. When the sap is flowing and the tree has

PORTIAND, April 4.

To the Editor of The Oregonian:
Much has been said about advertising our state, the need of which is only too apparent. Almost every other man one meets upon the street has his pet scheme for "booming" the country. In a majority of cases the probable result, it carried out, would be the minimum of benefit to the state and the maximum to themselves. It appears to me that the basis of advertising is a good deal like that of commerce. The problem that commercial men have to solve is how best to bring the pro-

When the sap is flowing and the tree has life and impulse from spring influences is an important time with orchards. While with large orchards it is advisable to prune during the winter, so as to be sure and have it done well and in goot, time, yet the best time to prune is in April, when the cut made by the knife will heal over and leave no sear. Now, you can go through your trees and lop off superfloous wood, and the quick growth of spring-time will heal over the wound. Out off the same wood in fall or winter, when the sap is down and no growth is making, and the scar left I womes dead wood. It may be that when spring comes it will heal over with new growth, but not so dean and completely as if the c at was made in spring time. Remember that you want a strong and substantial tree, that can hold up all the fruit the free ought to bear. It the branches are allowed to grow long and strangling, and a good fout season comes, the overloaded free will break down and be runed. If the yearly growth has beer cut back to make a stocky tree, it will hear all if ought of good sized fruit and will not brook down. It is not easy to convince men that pruning should be vigorous. They think they are butchering tha tree and that no good tesuits will come of it.

A feurly removed from town, some years ago, it ving their I me with some well grown fruit trees in the garden adjoining After four years above, a twy returned and inding there trees green to all shapes, limbs interlaced and some cid wood doad, pater familias took saw and knife and whatked away rather judiciously, but to the surprise of his neighbors. He cut of half the wood on trees twenty-twe years old, and did it early in May. The consequence was, that these trees outbore any thing known of them previously, and the fuit was of very fine quality. There is abundant proof that vigorous pruning, done with judgment, is necessary to secure good text and insure good fruit. The object of puning is to keep the tree he breaking, and to secure the best head, so the fruit can be

What methods can best be employed to bring boiled down and compact, and contain all the information necessary to convey an intelligent idea of our re-ources to those whom we wish to induce to come hither.

One instance of the benefit of advertising in the East is here given; Some years ago business man of this city (Mr. B. I'll cull him) asked the writer his opinion of the value of advertising an Oregon production in an Eastern priper. He said he did not care to go to much expense; that he wanted to obtain the best results possible from a single insertion of a small advertisement. After considerable discussion and persuasion
Mr. B. concluded to insert the advertisement in a New York weekly, although he hesitated considerably over the price charged—$2 per pine for a single insertion—thought that was "an outrageous price," "couldn't stand it,"
etc. By cutting down his matter I found that it could be reuced so as to occupy but

Our southern courties are making a specialty of peaches and grapes, and it would be a satisfaction to realize a good crep of fruit from that section as a foretaste of things to come.

perceived to fruit. While fruit-growers are apprehensive, there is decided confidence felt in Oregon to the fruit crop of this valley that it will be a good year and produce abundantly of the best of fruit.

In city gardens some early kinds of cherries, peaches and plums are now in full bloom, but the same influences do not extend to large orchards. Observations that cover large plantings of trees and some young and old orchards, justifies the assertion that the apring has been so far most layorable for fruit trees. There are few dead limbs or dead trees, fewer than for many years previous. Those who are pruning find the trees in splendid condition, and the promise of bloom and fruit is simply wonderful. A good yield of fruit in 1888 will encourage orchardists and those who intend to plant.

DAMAGE BY FROST.

Writing from Lewiston, J. H. Evans says:

Writing from Lewiston, J. H. Evans says: "The p: st winter has been a very trying one on your g frees in this section of the country. The mercury dropped 25 degrees below zero. There was not any snow on the ground at the time, and while the tops of the trees enjured the cold all right, the roots are badly winter willed. I have three year old wild plums and four year old apple trees, the roots of which are as dead as last year's weeds thardly I now how to account for this. Such a thing never occurred here before. First so severe as 25 degrees below zero has simply I filled the trees. It is not uncommon to find a tree apparently alive in early spring and ready to bloom, when it is really dead at the root. This applies especially to plum or praint trees that perhaps have a thread of life, but die at the top when the roots are celled on to supply food. A few years upon any o chards of stone fruits stiffered from frost near Walla Walla, but trees down on the tiver benches came through that winter silve.

A Wondorful Grass for Dry Regions. The great want of the vast region cart of vice its arctic winters and its torrid summers and feed! the cittle that are ext-minating and frampling out the native hunching is and other food plants of that region. If we are to behieve the story told of sanfoin, the stockmen concey Eureka. This plant possibly various either names, but that of sanfoin is said to be most common and appropriate. It is claimed that it thrives in New Mexico and grows most luxuriantly all over the hottest and driest pertions of Arizona. Not that it is already spread over the territories in question, but that wherever tried there and elsewhere in the dry plains and stony ridges of the entire mid-continent, it grows luxurian by all summer and needs no irrigation or a clivation. If the story told in exchanges of the wonderful growth and great tenacity of this plant are in any degree correct, sanfoin will realize all the hopes of slockmen and convert the vast deserts and plains as well as the rocky ranges and burnt districts of Utah, Nevada, New Mexico, Arizona and the Pacific Northwest into wealthproducing countries. The want of such a pasture and forage plant is common to all these territories, and to supply it as claimed, will add untold millions to the wealth and value of the national domain.

GOOD CULTIVATION.

What it Means and What it Accomplishes,

It is unfortunate that so many throw away increasing, so that there is reason to hope that Oregor will not only supply the home demand but have git-edged butter to export. Mr Fundan this winter found an opening for butter in Chinia, and hopes to live to see large quantities shipped there. But another item in the dairyman's line seems to be overlooked. We hear but little of cheese making, yet cheese it a wholesome article of food and in the most general use. To make good cheese is an art worth cultivating. The fame of some districts of Europe depends on the name they have for making superior cheese. There are some cheese factories in this state, but they do not seem to increase as creemerses do. Cheese in immense quantity is exported to Europe, and it would seem more takely that China would farmish a market for cheese than includer.

A cheesen aker a few years ago said he averaged to cents to la cracts per pound for all his procuct. When it is taken into account that butters hardly certain to sing thrice that ama, and that cheese is more easily manufactard and turns off so much more to the same quantity of milk, the matural inference is that cheese making should be a source of greater profit than make butter.

How to Furnish Summer and Winter Feed. With the opening of spring there will

With the opening of spring there will that up in his valley and other districts west of the Cascadea a number of creameries that will manufacture butter on improved principles. We may hope to see Oregon and the rest of the Columbia hasin taking rank as a first also shary country. It has been a complaint that our summers are too dry and our winters too wel for the dairyin in. Turning the rank sesson he cannot pasture to alvaid up, and does not care to ruin his soil by 50 done. Then summer comes, with are artifice, and against for the first solution has sold care to run his solution to have one and comparatively worthlies. But the world moves on, and modern progress surmounts even such difficulties as these. For summer field the improved dairyman uses green field by sliding, or cutting and feeding, instead of letting the cows run on the land. This is said to make nearest defined. of bettier the cows run on the same grass fed of the work of thirty of ordinary pasture, and the same grass fed in this way goes twice as fir as if the stock ate it off the land. There are various crops used for solling; even sorghum or cornstalks, fed green are excellent mixed with some nitrogen us food.

Ensilinge is made useful for both summer and winter use. It is becoming popular, even in this far off region, and will spread to common use as soon as people generally realize its worh. There are six montas of proposal note. On, 108 AND 110 FRONT regular to the common use as soon as people generally resident to the common of the common spring and fall that are unobjectionable on the score of weather. Take it as a whole; compare this country with the burning sunand arctic winters east of the Rocky mountains, and there is a vast difference in favor of the Pacific, without reckoning the cyclone of the Southern and Atlantic states and the blizzards that tear open Minnesota, Dakota and Mebracka.

The creatmer has made ordinary dairying impossible. Not for mere family use, but as a commercial success. The high pried world demand-gilt edged butter. It is willing to pay for its preference in coin. The neighborhood that supplies a creamery shares the profits. Co-operation is possible in setting the creamery in motion: there is no ret-on why all should not subscribe to buy the plant and set the works in motion. A recent review of creameries in operation in the Atlantic and Middle states, published in The Obesonsian a week or so ago, proves the system to be successful and that co-operation is possible and profitable in that co-operation. is possible and profitable in that coun

A well known farmer who lives in the hills south of Salem, recently returned from a visit to the older states, where he found that his friends practical and advocate the new plan of dishuring cattle. He came back not only determined to introduce the system here, but prepared, for business, as he had progued tools, or apparatus made for the purpose. Soon after he was home again he is can operations. He sawed of the home in short order, but his neighbors do not all agree with him that it was necessary tool it, or that the cattle suffered no pain or loss from it. They say the cattle stand in the corral with matterdripping from their heads, and seem not to have any appetite for food. It is moves successful and satisfactory no de bit other swill do likewise, but where early have small horns, and are not to minerous on the farm, or do not we their horns viciously, many will prefer to leave them as nature made them. So many say, and as the world does not all agree on any other question, it is not likely there will be a unanimous senument on this one. PORTLAND, THURSDAY, APRIL 5.

THE RAILROAD SITUATION.

The motive for that contract or combination among the railways of the Northwest, known as the joint lease, has heretofore been stated. Briefly, it originated with Henry Villard, whose idea was to bring about an agreement which should prevent a railroad ar. He believed that unless a truce should be made there would be a struggle which would force the roads into bankruptey, and that such result, while disastrous to the roads, could not but be injurious to the Some months ago he came to the relief of the Northern Pacific with a large react of the Northern leading with a large sum of money just in time to saye that road from the disaster that was inunifient as a con-sequence of obligations incurred to build the Cascad's branch; and he professes that his object in helping the Northean out of its difficulty was to avert a catastrophe that would surely have drawn down the other roads with it. Combination already existed between the Union Pacific and the O. R. & N., and what he designed in bringing the Northern into the arrangement, was assur-ance of a peace on terms that, in his judg-ment, should be equitable to all, and at the same time equally just to all parts of the Northwestern country. This is the substance of Mr. Villard's statement. It is confirmed by all the other par-ties in interest, to the extent at least of adssion on their part that the compact is the right of Mr. Villard. Mr. Adams, of the tion Pacific, was at first disinclined to tisten to the proposal, and frequently during the progress of the negotiation declared he would go no further with it; but, according to his own statement, he gradually yielded to the arguments of Mr. Villard, presented as ere in support of a plan that offered the only afternative to a war in which he confesses he is itly prepared to engage. And now, the details of the agreement having been substantially settled. Mr. Adams is an extrest advocate of the joint undertaking, as the best thing at present both for the roads and for the country. Mr. Harris, of the Neethern, who, averages to what which the best thing at present both for the roads and for the country. Northern, who represents what may be does not appear as an earnest supporter or defender of the compact, set he gives his fasen to it. The party that Mr. Harris rejection resents could scarcely be expected to accept with public demonstration of satisfaction; a plan formulated by Villard, and yet are not in position at present to oppose Villard, and probably will not oppose him seriously, so long as his policy is at all tolerable to them.

The motive of the proposed combination being thus understood, it will be easy to see that the compact cannot possibly with stand any strain seriously projudicial to the inter-ests of any of the parties to it. The joint ests of any of the parties to it. The joint lense, so-called, cannot possibly have no legal standing; that is, it can have no bind-ing force at law. This is freely and fully ad-mitted by all the parties concerned in it. Consequently, it its terms shall be found injurious to any of the contracting parties modification may be sought, or the party deeming itself injured may withdraw from

The six citizens of Portland who went to New York "to talk the matter over" with the promoters of the joint lease gave a very full presentation of their objections. These of the party spake from the standpoint of directors of the O. R. & N. Company, not forgetting meanwhile the fact that the inter-ests of this company, of the country of the Northwest and of its leading commercial city are identical; the other three spoke from the standpoint of citizens, who realize the fact that the interests of Portland are inseparably bound up with the welfare and prosperity o the Northwest, and who therefore wish to see the policy pursued that will conduce in highest digree to the premotion of all inter-sets togother. This committee, if it may be so called, showed forth at great length how in their judgment, the proposed arrange ment would be hijurious to the O. R. & N., to the Union Pacific, to the producers of a large part of the Northwest and to the commercial interests of Portland. To the objection that the O. R. & N. ought not to allow itself to be cut out of the country morth of Sulke river it was answered that, under the terms of the agreement the traffic of that territory could freely take the O. R. & N. route to and from Portland, on the same terms as to and from Tacoma. To the objection that this would still be unequal because of the better gradients of the O. R. & N., and because there existed obstacles on the lower river and bar not met with at Puget round, it was answered that those obstacles would be removed, to the extent at least of consizing the conditions, and to this end the O. R. & N. would undertake and maintain cheap and efficient towage service on the river and bar, and lighterage service when necessary on the river, so that the charges upon shipping here should be no greater than at Puget sound. Positive assurance was given that this would be undertaken as soon as arrange-nents or efforts shall be made to divertanch traffic icom sold last mentioned line.'

"This," said Mr. Holmes, "is from the third section of the fifth article of the joint

"But the Northern", persisted the Port-land committee, "will have opportunity un-der the joint lease to occupy the whole country north of Snake river with its own branches and feeders, and the O. R. & N. is to keep out. Then suppose the compact abandoned, after the Northern has become firmly established in that territory, in what condition will the O. R. & N. be,-its own line north of Snake river, now leaved to the Northern, surrendered after the Northern has made it valueless by perfecting its own system? The Northern then will have the country north of Saake river, and the Ore-gon road will be cut out of it. "Should the leave go to pieces," said Mr. Adams, "the O. P. & N. will still be able to contend for the country north of Snake river. I corn at a splane connect is Valouse branch south its main system within three months. Moreover he O. R. & N. is now to build a line along the water level of Snake river on the north-fale from Riparia to Lewiston; a ridge will be creeted over the river and a line direct from Wallula through Eureka Flat to this bridge will be constructed, so that here will so a continuous line with excellent grade from Wallula to Lewiston; branches will be sent out into the Clearwater country. and, in case the joint lease is broken the O. R. & N. will be in position to throw out from this stem, built along a water level, a network of branches covering all Eastern Washington and Northern Idaho. The position will be better than any position a competitor can possibly gain."

The Borband committee pressed the mat-ler of ore rates, urging that the same mileage rates ought to be given west as east. It was idmitted that this was a just demand, and Mr. Villard engaged to make an effort to se-cure compliance with it. He believed that he could do so as soon as his plans could be perfected. Mr. Harris, of the Northern, ad-mitted the tin equity the same indeage, rates ought to he given west as east; he said that the letter written by Mr. Oakes to the Portland board of trade was wrong in principle, that it was the method of twenty years ago, but was far behind the principles of railroad ananagement of the present day. He even would grant roller again-t it. It was singular to bear such statements from the president of the Northern Pacific about the man-ent from what was supposed in this, that the arrangement does not aspire to the standing of a validicontract, enforceable at law; that it is an agreement terminable at the pleasure of any of the parties, so that even the pro-moters of it admit that withdrawal from it will be inevitable upon conflict of interests. last longer than the parties, or any one of them, find injury from it as feel strong enough to disregard it.

It is, we believe, the opinion of the members of the Portland committees though they surrender none of their objections to the joint premer none or their objections to the joint lease—that, through the conferences had on the subject, a basic has been a tablished for securing many things of importance to Port-land and to the country at large, whether the arrangement between the rainroads shall hold or not. In this matter, opportunities, are presented which should be tarned to ac-count, and it cannot be income to say that count, and it named be improped to say that! the committee have done all they could in that behalf. It is their opinion also that if Portland shall make the most of her situa-tion and apportunities, this compact among the railreads will be found to give her little real grow of for concern. Even it it shall go into effect, which may be doubted, it will fall of its own weight as soon as it begins to hurt any interest affected by it.

"Bob" Ingersoll defines the tariff situation accurately as follows: "The uniquity in this country do not believe in free trade, A large majority think it of the utmost importance to diversity and protect, when necessary, the industries of our people. A inree mi jority, in my judgment, think the tariff ought, in many partendars, to be reformed. They know that every tariff bill that has ever been passed has been more or less deformed by compromise. They know that all the interests asking for pretection combined and that some interests that ought not to be protected secured it by threats and intimidation. That is, they said: 'If you do not protect us we will vote not to protect you.' So that the deserving industries have been compelled to include many that were undeserving. Every success has its parasites. Some people are willing to destroy the success for the rake of killing the parasites, but the great majority do not feel like injursound. Positive assurance was given that this would be undertaken as soon as arrange ments could be made.

To the statement that not only Portland but the country generally would prefer that the O. E. & N. go on with the development it has begun, independent of the Northern,—in other words, that the O. R. & N. should be compared by protection in the industries that are protected, that any thing like free teads will bring, for a line at mixing the industries that the O. R. & N. should be connect its line words by the origin spann to protection."

The Cleveland democracy express a plant spann to the country generally would prefer that the own with and depend upon the industries that are protected, that any difference words, that the O. FREE WOOL VS. TAXED SUGAR.

Oregon is invited by Mr. Irish to swallow Cleveland and free wool. To swallow Cleve-land may be possible for the democracy, but it will require a more ingenious orator than it will require a more ingenious orator than Mr. Irish to get Oregon to pronounce very distinctly for Cleveland until it gets "the wool off from its teeth." The Oregon fartnar may not remember when Sebestian Caboliscovered Labrador, but he does know something about the history of the tariff and its relation to the wool growing industry of this country.

From 1850 to 1860, during a time of low tariff, the increase in the number of since in the United States was about 334 per cent. In the next decade the increase was 27 per cent., and during the following ten years' the in-crease was 41 per cent. The increase in the the merease was at per cent. The increase in the munder of sheep and the wool product was steady up to 1883, when a reduction of 10 per cent, in the lartiff on clothing and combing wools was ordered. The following year the sheep industry continued to grow, but from 1884 to 1887 there was a decline as steady as the increase during the years of adequate protection. In 1887 the decrease had amounted to over 0.080.000 sheep; the importation of wool had rivers from 75,000,030, nomids In 1881 to 111,099,000 pounds in 1887. In 1887 weeden go als were imported requiring for their manufeature 150,000,090 pounds of weel, and there was paid to foreigners $100,000,000 for wool and westen goods that ought to for wool and woden goods that ought to have been produced at home. The statement that half a million of there were lost by Naw England under a high wool tariff is false; the loss was but 212,000, and the sheep industry went down twice as fact under the tariff for revenue only as it did under the high wool tariff that made that industry grow enormously outside of New England.

W. S. Shellonberger of Rochester, Paring W. S. Shallenberger, of Rochester. Pa., in the current number of the North American Review, discusses the probable effect of any measures based on the lines of Cleveland message on the industry of sheep husbandry and wool geowing and on workmen's wages. He points out that the slight reduction of duties on word by the act of 1833 has caused the slaughter of many sheep and fargely in-creased the importation of foreign wool. The free admission of wool from highly favored countries, like Australia and South America. ananagement of the present day. Me even suggested that the interstate commission would grant relief again-t it. It was singu-woolen manufacturers. The wages of workmen in every other industry would decline by reason of the increased competition conagement of his own road. The inference sequent upon a million of flock masters, was that I'e did not undertake himself to deal with traffic questions. "Grant that with free wood we may have less to pay for The situation as to the joint lease is differan exchange for it; hence it will cost us more." Free weal would not give us control of foreign markets, for free cotton has not. We consume 95 per cent, of collon manufac tures, and export 5 per cent. The cost of in-hor is the principal factor in the cost of pro-duction. To compete in foreign markets we Therefore it does not, as has been supposed must reduce wages, transportation and inhere, commit the Oregon road to a situation in which a cannot help it-elf. In the nature of things, such conflict must take place, probably soon. The compact cannot berger say that the diminished rost of animal food by the protection of sheep husbandry, with adequate auties on import-ed wool, would many times compensate for the increased cost of weeden fabrics. The tariff of 1883 lowered the duties upon that beanch of woolen manufactures known as "worsteds" below the protecting point. The result has been a vast in pactor of oreign worsteds and an almost connecte paralysis of the worsted industry in this country Pally one-half of the worsted machinery the country is now file and the remainder is kept running unprofitably.

Remembering these facts does Mr. Irish seriously believe that Oregon will be imposed upon by the pretenses of a president who bluntly advocates free wool. a Northern product professed by a duty on imported wool which amounted hat year to about $8,000,000, but does not favor free sugar, a assumed peoplet, protected by a duty that a mounted last year to $51,000,000? In order to give the Louisiana segar-provers a market for their aprimal product of about $15,000,000 worth of sugar the American people pay in taxes to the government between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000, and in a tax to the combined sugar refiners about $20,000,000. And yet the president passed by sugar on which one-half of the surplus of $100,000,000 was collected and took up a commodity on which less than one-two-fifth of the surplus duty was collected. Wool paid about 11 per cent, of all the duties, collected on merch in dise, aggregating $180,000,000 in 1886, white sugar and molasses paid 27 per cent. The duty on wool imposed a tax of less than welve cents on each person in the countr while the duty on sugar imposed a tax of almost $1. Why did the president, if he is not crevenue reform charlatan and tariff reduc ion prelender, select wool and not sugar? The only answer is that the wool-growing rates are generally in the North and West republican states—while the sugar-growing states are almost en irely in the South—demincredic states.

A ROTTEN RECORD.

The Marion county (Ind.) commissioners have reappointed as inspectors for the town-ship election which takes place this month the members of the Sim Coy gang who were concerned in the tally sheel forgeries in 1886. including Bealterner, who is in the politer-dary serving his term for complicity in the forgeties, and seep-al net who are now under indictment. The list was revised last Congressian Cogswell, of Massachusetts.

record of the democratic party in these states. In 1857 the Indiana democracy in the legislature executed a fraudulent election of U.S. senators, which was not participated in by a prorum of either branch of the legislaby a fuorum of either branch of the legisla-ture, the state senate at the very hour of this alleged joint convention being in open session. Stanneless political fraud and cor-rupt in has been the speur and shield of the democratic party in its whole history from the days of Jackson down to those of Tillen; from the days of Tilden down to the elections of Payne and Turpic to the U.S. senate.

Another striking indication of the growth of Pertland is presented in the fact reported to-day that a passenger car line, crossing the Willi mette bridge, at the foot of Morrison stree, is to be extended directly east past Lone Fir cemetery, about half way to Mount Tabor. The distance is one and a half unite. This line will bring into market a large scope of resident territory. The attraction of a car fine, with a one every fifteen minutes to and from the central part of Postland, with lares at five cents, including the transfer over the half with the will offer a minute to the minu bridge, will offer fine inducements to those seeking homes on the east side. There is certain to be a lively demand for property in that quarter.

Henry Villard has sailed for Europe for the jurpose of making additional fina reial arrangements for extension of railroads in Oregon, Washington and Idaho. His present undertaking is chiefly with new bonds of the O. R. & N. He expects to return to America within three months, and may come to Oregon in September.

A expected, Col. Irish gained his point. The producers were overwhelmed and the democracy of Oregon stands committed to the policy of free wool and taxed woolens.

LONDON GRAIN LETTER.

The regular correspondent of the Minneapolis
If for writes, under duto of March 12, regarding cross and markets. The weather in this country has become much milder within the hast few days and is now quite spring hist cambing farmers to get on with their spring field work. The autumn sown which has a resed through the whiter with out hart a, and, with no funder untoward weather bids fair to be a good crop. The acreage sown is expected to be about equal to last years. Certain bit will not show much me these pickes being for from remunerative to the grown. The British farmer, indeed, is giving up weat growing as a forlorp hope. In Prance, on the conteary with an employed duty of 88 9d per quarter and where farm as redow, practically that much more per quar ers redelve practically that much more per quar-ter than they do in England, the tendency is to increat they do in Enginea, the tendency is to in-creat the acreage, and we are told that there has setus,ly been an increase in the area sown this year. With a good crop, thepdare, France, which this retorn will import about 20,000,000 bushels, against 20,000,000 but cason, will probably use no-

quire unv aid from abroad in Hale, 'oo, the arreage is ilkely to be increased, farmers there being protected by a duty equal to that of France The continued compositive patients of supplies in the United Mingdom is of hitle or no effect being counterbilanced by the gradual increase in the quantity advanta and the promise of large supplies from South Kristia alter April The Inture their more than ever, depends upon the outlink of negrowing crops, which so far promise, well in Furope
